

EAT AND DRINK

Thanksgiving-themed foods around NYC include sandwiches, burgers and cookies

By Jillian Jorgensen jillian.jorgensen@amny.com November 16, 2016

Why limit yourself to classic cuisine this Thanksgiving?

The typical holiday dinner spread -- carved turkey with stuffing and mashed potatoes -- and the homemade sandwiches you make with the leftovers the next day don't have to be the only tastes of Thanksgiving you get this year.

Restaurants across the city are tapping into your craving for turkey and cranberry sauce with everything from turkey pot pie burgers to turkey tacos.

Here's a look at some of the Thanksgiving-themed mash-up foods you can enjoy over the next couple of weeks.

5 Napkin Burger's Thanksgiving on a Bun

Available only during Thanksgiving weekend, this 10-ounce patty is a 50/50 combination of ground turkey (white and dark meat) and pork sausage, with celery, onions, apples, currants, fresh thyme and sage, and cornbread. It's topped with smoked cheddar, onion gravy, chicory, sweet potato chips and cranberry mayo and served on a potato roll. (Multiple locations, 5napkinburger.com)

(Credit: 5 Napkin Burger)

